Biotech Company Implements Collaborative Sales Enablement Platform to Improve Sales Productivity

THE CHALLENGE

A multinational biotech company faced several critical obstacles that were impacting the performance, effectiveness, and even morale of its sales team:

- A large, complicated, and constantly changing set of products that numbered more than 15,000 SKUs
- A large and globally distributed sales team with varying degrees of technical expertise
- A small sales support group that struggled to keep pace with the rapidly changing products, and therefore could not respond effectively and quickly to many of the sales team's requests. In certain instances, the responses required verification and oversight, which prolonged the time it took to answer.
- A sales team with no scalable method for members to share their insights and experiences with others

THE SOLUTION

The customer chose OutStart Participate as their collaborative sales enablement platform to address these obstacles. Working in partnership with OutStart's Professional Services group, an implementation was rapidly configured and deployed to enable the following:

Create a Virtual Environment for Collaboration with Experts

The customer used the Expert Networking capability to enable collaboration between the sales team and a pool of subject matter experts (often sales support staff or scientists in the field).

Provide Self-service

The system worked behind the scenes to capture, categorize, and store conversations as they occurred.

Ensure Accurate, Complete Answers and Provide Exposure for Sales Enablement Q&A Throughout the Organization

Using Participate's expertise profiling engine, sales reps submitted questions to the system, and Participate automatically matched questions with appropriate subject matter experts, captured their answers, and saved the content for use by others. The information seekers were able to rate the responses they received, while subject matter experts were able to review, add to, and amend the responses as necessary. This provided a significant upgrade to the previous email- and phone-based process.

“the customer acquired a large business in their market, which made this scalable sales enablement and collaboration platform even more valuable.”

Use Social Profiling Engine Networking Features to Encourage More Informal Collaboration and Sharing Throughout the Enterprise

Using OutStart Participate blogs, the executive team and business leaders began sharing frequent, informal updates directly with the sales force, and enabled Sales to post comments and follow-up questions directly on the blog posts.

THE RESULTS

Based on the pilot results, healthy adoption, and positive feedback from the users, the customer began to plan for a wider rollout of the platform to all departments in the enterprise, and began deploying additional social networking capabilities such as Discussions, Wikis, and Blogs to drive more peer-to-peer collaboration. Additionally, the customer acquired a large business in their market, which made this scalable sales enablement and collaboration platform even more valuable. The customer is currently integrating the acquired organization's sales reps, experts, and products into the platform, furthering the reach and impact of the solution.

This customer recently completed an acquisition, and OutStart Participate helped the merged sales team rapidly adopt and become productive with new company messaging and actively selling a complex and broader set of products.
